Collection of Basho poems, the title taken from one about a cat who had grown either sick or thin (I don't recall which) on love and barley.I missed the framework of the journey that there is in The Narrow Road to the Deep North and Other Travel Sketches.The selection ends with what is said to be Basho's death bed poem: tabi ni yande / yume wa kareno wo / kake meguru falling sick on a journey ...

On Love and Barley: Haiku of Basho by Matsuo Bashō

About On Love and Barley. Basho, one of the greatest of Japanese poets and the master of haiku, was also a Buddhist monk and a life-long traveller. His poems combine 'karumi', or lightness of touch, with the Zen ideal of oneness with creation. Each poem evokes the natural world – the cherry blossom, the leaping frog, the summer moon or the winter ...

One of the things we love about traveling is experiencing contrasts, especially the contrasts between tradition and modernity or between nature and urban life. Big cities offer some the world’s most intense contrasts—Mercedes Benzes weaving around ox carts in Mumbai; street stalls side by side with tablecloth restaurants in Singapore; luthiers and lapidary located a block from Lululemon in ...

Love and Barley | All photos all the time

In a thoughtful and perceptive introduction, Stryk sets the stage for an appreciation of what Basho’s poetry has to offer, sketching his life, his times, his spirit. For most of his life Basho was a recluse. He lived on the outskirts of Edo (Tokyo) in a hut shaded by an exotic banana tree (the Basho)....
